

Toddler Time

August 23-27 Theme: Friendship

Introductions: The Bell

Our little Toddler friends are doing such a great job adjusting to our new routine! The fun will continue this week as we get acquainted with each other.

This week we will introduce "The Bell" during circle time. The bell is a great attention grabber that signals to our class that it is time to listen. Our little friends are loving circle time and feel so proud of themselves when we sing their name and they put their name bears on the board for attendance time.

Language class will include new books called My Nose, Your Nose and an interactive band-aid book called All Better. These books help our little friends notice differences and similarities with our classmates as well as encouraging social skills that promote how to be a good friend.

In Concept class we will practice turn taking games where we roll a color dice and match the color picture on a flannel board. Teamwork will be encouraged as we build colorful towers together and take turns knocking them down.

Art will continue to provide opportunities for our little friends to explore various mediums such as finger paints, stamp art as well as outdoor teamwork painting.

Gross motor play on our outdoor park is a great way to start our morning. The children will enjoy ball play and bubbles outside. Feel free to send in bubbles for our class to enjoy.
